Religious Diversity Leadership Summit: New York Sponsorship Opportunities

ABOUT THE SUMMIT

Tanenbaum Summits convene a wide array of corporate representatives and subject matter experts to share the latest trends, insights, and better practices within the field of religious diversity and inclusion. Importantly, information is always presented within the context of workplace applicability. Though attendees are largely diversity and inclusion practitioners, the Summit is a general audience conference open to any professional interested in religious diversity and inclusion in the workplace.

Attendees of the most recent Religious Diversity Leadership Summit: New York (the Summit) represented about 50 different companies/organizations within close to 20 different industries. Such industries included, but were not limited to: retail, entertainment, pharmaceuticals, automotive, tech, consulting, insurance, and academia.

2020 SUMMIT

Marking the fifth iteration of the Summit, this full-day event will be held at the Fordham University School of Law on May 27, 2020, hosted by the University's Institute on Religion, Law and Lawyer's Work.
