

Competencies for Respectful Communication

AVOID ASSUMPTIONS	When thinking about issues of diversity and interacting with colleagues, al- ways check yourself by asking yourself questions: Am I missing any part of the picture? What do I think I know, and what do I actually know? Challenge those assumptions!
AVOID Spokesperson Syndrome	Use "I" language. Ensure that individuals speak from their own experience and not as the representative of an entire group. Be careful that you don't become a spokesperson yourself
PLATINUM RULE	Treat others the way they would want to be treated. And the only way to know how respect "looks" to someone is to ask.
BE CURIOUS AND ASK RESPECTFULLY	Put your natural curiosity to good use. Often our fear of inadvertently offend- ing someone can become a barrier to asking the necessary questions. You might say something like, "If you have a few minutes today, I'd love to learn more about your thoughts on" This kind of language communi- cates that you respect your colleagues and are open to understanding a new perspective.
LISTEN ACTIVELY	If you are mentally constructing what you are going to say next while a col- league is still speaking, that signifies that you have stopped listening actively.
DEBUNK Stereotypes	Stereotypes can be the worst culprit in creating conflicts and misunderstand- ings. If you hear key words such as "all," "always," "never," "them," and "those people."
ADDRESS Behavior, not Belief	All individuals are free to believe whatever it is that they believe. However, it's critical that all employees behave respectfully toward one another in the workplace.
ENCOURAGE Learning	Learn from every encounter, and use those insights to continue building your knowledge base.
ACKNOWLEDGE AND Apologize for Mistakes	We have to acknowledge that given the breadth and depth of diversity, we're all going to make mistakes. But mistakes are important to make – you can learn from them and they provide an opportunity to deepen our understand- ing of one another – so long as they are dealt with properly. They must first be acknowledged and then you must then take ownership and genuinely apolo- gize for the mistake made.
