New Vaccines Resources for Workplaces and Healthcare Settings

In response to the evolving COVID-19 pandemic and the increasing need to prepare for the fall, Tanenbaum released two resources that can help with navigating clinic settings and embracing and considering an array of topics that may arise during discussions.

- A guide for workplace leaders and their employees on how to prepare and respond to any vaccine hesitancy that may arise from a clinic setting
- A guide for healthcare leaders and their employees on how to prepare and respond to any vaccine hesitancy that may arise from a clinic setting

Resources for Purposeful Conversations on Difficult Topics

As organizations grow and thrive, norms are often seen as best to navigate and include an array of opinions and perspectives. Tanenbaum would like to highlight its recent new and existing resources that can help with having a productive clinic setting and embracing and considering an array of topics that may arise during discussions.

- A guide for workplace leaders and their employees on how to prepare and respond to any vaccine hesitancy that may arise from a clinic setting
- A guide for healthcare leaders and their employees on how to prepare and respond to any vaccine hesitancy that may arise from a clinic setting

Coffee With Mark

Join Mark Fowler, Tanenbaum CEO, for our upcoming “Coffee with Mark” session on July 15th at 9:30am ET. These small group, hour-long roundtable discussions provide an informal and intimate setting for attendees to discuss Tanenbaum’s work addressing the issues they care most about. Grab your favorite beverage and join us as we talk about navigating religious diversity in the workplace!
